Joint Meeting of Rotary And Board of Trade

One of the most enjoyable and worthwhile meetings held for a long while, was the joint meeting of the Rotary Club and the Board of Trade held in the United Church Wednesday evening last, when 34 Board of Trade members and Rotarians sat down to lunch at 6:30, and afterwards held a meeting for an hour and a half, in which they discussed matters of importance to the Town and district.

The Ladies Aid served the usual splendid luncheon, after which community singing was enjoyed for a few minutes, led by Will Stone with Roi Stone at the piano. Lambert Pack was in charge of the meeting, and called on A. H. Zabriksie and L. L. Palmer to present the suggestions for a swimming pool, to be located in Memorial Park, as the beginning of a program to make a real beauty spot out of this piece of ground. Estimated cost had already been arrived at by engineers, and the co-operation of the Town Council pledged to the project. Several members of the body present offered suggestions, and considerations to the plan, and it ended by a decision to take the matter to the Ratepayers Meeting Friday night, and present it there for acceptance or rejection by the Ratepayers of the Town.

President H. S. Allen was the guest speaker of the evening, treating the subject of Community Projects, and treated the Sugar Beet industry, speaking of the value to the district of this industry, and expressing the hope that no difficulties would be permitted to arise which would conflict and cause any disruption to the industry. He also mentioned briefly the need of a better and surer water supply for the Town, a sewage system, and suggested that a gravelling program for our streets would be a fine thing as it would induce out of town people to visit us, and would result in more business for the Town.

In his opinion, a beautification campaign was badly needed, and he suggested that if such were undertaken, that a landscape gardener should be employed by the organizations of the Town to assist householders in their planting, and told of several attempts he had made to plan his planting, and the disappointing results due to lack of planning. A paint-up campaign was also needed, and he felt certain that stores in the town would cooperate in this by selling paint at just enough above cost to pay handling charges, to further this program.

The meeting adjourned at 9 p.m., everyone feeling well repaid for attending.

L. L. Pack, President of the Rotary Club, and President Lee Brwerton of the Board of Trade extended greetings and a welcome to the meeting.

Well, we have finished one twelfth of 1936 anyway. What do you think of the New Year by now?

"Smiling Sam" Fairbanks is in the Lethbridge Hospital, having undergone an operation there early this week.

A local audition for participants is being arranged for the near future. If you are interested watch for the advertising on this matter and get in touch with those in charge. It will be worth your time to try out.

NEWS NOTES

Several cases of Chicken Pox still persist in the Town.

See Garbo in "ANNA KARENINA" at the Capitol Monday next. Also Cut Crystal Night.

Another eight or ten men are listed for a transfer to Picture Butte in the near future. The question with the boys is "Who will it be?"

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Weaver are the proud parents of a baby girl born January 21, at a hospital in Chicago, Ill. Mother and babe are doing fine. Mrs. Holmes of Raymond is with the family at Linder Ave. Chicago.

Go! ice at the Rink and Free Skating means a large and happy crowd whenever the weather permits. The kiddies get a great deal of fun out of it each evening after school.

Development of Alberta's salt beds near Fort McMurray started this week, a company of eastern capitalists backing the venture, expecting to mine 100 tons of salt a day and provide employment for at least 40 persons.

David Whiff of the Wolf Creek Colony died last Thursday from a stroke. He is one of the first adult members of this colony to pass away, and was known to many Raymond people, especially the business men.

Eddie Price, Leonard Mehew, Wilfrid Hague, Frank Kenney and Jim Christensen have all been moved to Picture Butte recently, and have been installed as foremen in the new Factory there. We congratulate these Raymondites on their promotion.

E. C. Doherty who has been ledger keeper at the Bank of Montreal for some months has been transferred to Leduc, and left Thursday morning for that point. His place here is being taken by N. S. Howe, who is being transferred from that point to Raymond.

30 employees of various departments of the Provincial Government have been dismissed since September 3 for greater economy, and it is stated that there are still more to go, as the most rigid economy must be practised in all departments according to Cabinet members.

A great many local people listened in Tuesday morning to the broadcast of the funeral services for King George in St. George's Chapel, Reception was pretty good but there was some interference. Services were brief, but impressive, and the bands in the procession playing the Dead March in Saul, and the minute guns and bell could be plainly heard.

A. W. Kirkham has shown very little improvement in the past two weeks, and he and Mrs. Kirkham left Sunday morning with Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Holmes for Salt Lake City, and if this move does not bring improvement, they will continue on to Southern California to see if the climatic conditions there will remedy the trouble.

A. J. Walton, W. H. Zobel and F. W. Romeril returned recently from a trip which took them as far south as the southern end of California, and through a number of the in-between states. They travelled nearly 5,000 miles while away, but Andrew says the trip was not expensive and they sure had a lovely time.

Memorial Service Well Attended

A very good-sized congregation was present at the Stake House Tuesday afternoon for the Memorial Service held in honor of the late King George V, there being 300 people or more present, among whom were a goodly number of Boy Scouts and children of tender years, assembled in honor of a great man.

The returned Men had marched in a body with a number of Boy Scouts from the Town Hall and occupied seats in the front of the hall. Paul H. Redd, a returned man, and a member of the First Ward Bishopric was Chairman of the meeting. The First Ward Choir under the direction of W. W. McMullin furnished the singing.

The opening song by Choir and congregation was "O Canada," followed by the Invocation, pronounced by President H. S. Allen. This was followed by "Abide With Me," by the Choir. This was one of the deceased King's favorite hymns.

The two minutes silence observed at this point was very impressive, and was wonderfully observed by the crowd, absolute silence prevailing during this time.

Solon E. Low, M.L.A., was the first speaker, and in his opening remarks stated how pleased he was to meet under such circumstances to show his respect and admiration for a Great King, and how fine it was for such a fine crowd to assemble in honor of the memory of one so loved and respected. He spoke of the seriousness of Kingship, and stated that it was not a position to be sought after. Critics in judging the value of Britain's King often were thoughtless, and frequently not well acquainted with the wonderful influence for good, not only on his own subjects, but upon the other nations of the world that the deceased sovereign had exercised. He hoped in his remarks to help his listeners to a greater appreciation of the life of sacrifice and service of the Monarch of the greatest Kingdom on the face of the earth.

The whole life of King George prior to his coming to the Throne, had been devoted to training for the position. His years in the navy, during the period as Prince of Wales, he had been in study and preparation. His years at sea had taught him discipline and organization ability, and in his study periods he had mastered French. Also in his travels around the world he had met with various people in different circumstances, so that his sympathy, understanding and knowledge of humanity had been broadened and deepened in these contacts. In his years as King his whole thought had been of his Empire and his people, and there had been no personal tarnish in any of it. His household life was beautiful in its simplicity, he was always approachable, and many of the problems of the Empire were solved by the King and his Prime Minister in the small hours of the night, when most people thought him asleep. His last request was as to conditions in the Empire, placing this before any personal matters.

Jos. McLean sang "Long Live the King," accompanied by the Piano by Mrs. Emma Dahl.

Lambert L. Pack spoke very feelingly of the part the royal family played in the Great War. The King visiting hospitals, training camps and the trenches, and the present King serving with the Canadians. It was proper we should meet in memory of our dead King, and to show sympathy and condolence to the Queen Mother and the royal family. One of the greatest spectacles he had ever read of was the splendid tribute paid to the deceased monarch in the hundreds of thousands of people who had filed past his bier while the body was lying in state in Westminster Hall. This proved the old adage "The throng lies in the heart of the people." In his estimation King George was the greatest King that had ever ruled on the earth, and he believed that historians of the future would bear out this belief. King George was the great King to many smaller Kingdoms, and leaders of divisions of people. On his visit to France some years ago with his consort the French newspaper referred to them "as more royal than royalty."

One fourth of the world's population were in mourning and sorrow today, and it was almost inconceivable that one monarch should have such influence of so many millions of people. The late King had brought to fruition the visions of his grandmother and his father in bringing about a greater British Empire, and one that was more united and tied together in bonds of peace and brotherhood. Greater possibly than his role as King, if this were possible, was his being the perfect "Country Gentleman." He loved the seclusion of his estate at Sandringham, there with his cattle, horses, dogs, his pets and guns, he felt entirely at home. He loved his family and spent all his leisure playing and romping with his boys.

He had an outstanding personality, and this possibly more than any other one thing endeared him to his millions of subjects. He mentioned the King as a neighborly friend, father, husband, gentleman and wonderful executive.

In tribute to our present Monarch he knew the affairs of the nation were in good hands, and that in following the footsteps of his father, Britain would continue to have good sound, stable leadership.

Kipling's "Recessional," payer by President O. H. Snow, and the singing of the National Anthem by the congregation brought to a close the Memorial Service.

NEWS NOTES

Mrs. S. B. Smith had her tonsils removed Thursday.

Quarterly Conference will be held Feb. 8th and 9th in Magrath. Good programs are outlined for all of the meetings.

"ONE EXCITING ADVENTURE" at the Capitol tonight and Saturday is entertainment plus. Be sure and see it.

Our weather forecast would be: Continued cold, don't look for warm weather until May 1st then you won't likely be disappointed.

Stake Priesthood meeting Sunday was well attended, and President Allen was optimistic in his outlook for the future, based on the increases of the past year. In his remarks he paid high tribute to the reign of King George V, and the security and peace which subjects of the British Empire are enjoying in comparison with many other nations of the world.

An enjoyable evening was spent Wednesday at the P. J. Christensen home, when a few friends and neighbors surprised him, and stayed to spend the evening, games, conversation and refreshments occupying the time. Amongst those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Oliver McLean, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Smith and Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Strong, Mrs. Chas. Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. McLean, John U. Wall Mrs. Annie Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gibb the first of Lenor and his daughter B. H.

Bill Wigzell shook his head a couple of times and blinked his eyes, when during the coldest of the past cold snap, a customer came in to purchase a mower and rake. It also took considerable persuasion on the part of Bill to convince Mutt that he really wanted him to bring him barrels of oil per day with the a mower and rake when he needed for them. However, it was a case of foresight, on the part of one of our local Hungarian farmers, who knew he would need these machines for next spring, and while he had the money he decided to purchase and pay for the equipment. He is determined to finish the term more of us to follow this example.

Playing the Lethbridge Y Aces Wednesday night in an exhibition game, the local Union Jacks won by a score of 52-35. Onlookers described the game as rather listless and uninteresting.

The Santa Rita well in the Cuthbert field is running 800 barrels of oil per day with the valve only partly open. Oil men looked for this. However, it is estimated the well would flow 1,000 barrels per day if opened completely.

Mine Worker's Committee in Edmonton are demanding that Mayor Knight resign, and the Mayor refuses to do so. He is determined to finish the term unless those who put him there decide they do not want him.

Despite the sub-zero weather Saturday night last, the Opera House was well filled for the Annual Green and Gold Ball, put on by the Stake Mutuals, and attended by every ward in the Stake.

As usual the crowning event of the Ball was the selection & coronation of the Queen, which again fell to the Welling Ward, who are making a regular habit of having their queen elected. The balloting is on the proportion of the Ward's population attending the ball, and by united effort and team work, Welling enthroned Miss Lyda Peterson as queen of the ball, the other candidates being ladies in waiting for her.

The Green and Gold dance also was introduced, and will be a feature of Mutual balls for the remainder of the year. Music was furnished by Roi Stone and his orchestra, and everyone present greatly enjoyed the evening.

THIS FEBRUARY BOASTS AN EXTRA SATURDAY

Bloomington, Ind.—What is so rare as five pay days in February?

A local research statistician yesterday found that occurrence (taking Saturday as pay day) so rare it has happened but five times in the nation's 160 years of independence. And it happens again next month. February last had five Saturdays in 1812, 1840, 1868 and 1896. After this year it won't occur again until 1964.—Christian Science Monitor.

SUPPORT YOUR SCOUT LEADERS

In the Stake Priesthood meeting Sunday, District Commissioner E. J. Fawcett gave a very optimistic report of the recent Scout Leaders course that had been held here, but ended by a pleading for co-operation and assistance on the part of parents and others, in the interest of the boys, so that each troop would have a Council, and a Scout home where they could meet and fix it up with their patrol and troop emblems, etc., and feel that it was their very own.

Without desiring to find fault we say in the beginning that any community which fails to back up a Boy Scout program 100% is passing up one of the best guarantees of well-behaved, law abiding young men that can be found anywhere. In view of the fact that we are apt to be called on the carpet, perhaps we should add, that Scouting does not mean a couple of years for the boys, but it means a program that influences the boy from 12 to 18 years of age. Keep a boy busy at something useful for these six years, and you have his future just about cut out for him.

Space will not permit listing of the aims and objects of Scouting. We would like, however, to put the Scout Law down in print, so it can be read, and we hope, considered a little. It is, "On my honor, I promise to do my best to God and the King, to obey the Scout Law, and to help other people at all times." Anyone with this kind of a code in mind all the time cannot help but be made better by it. The Scouts in their meetings, and work are asked to repeat this promise often, and to memorize the 12 sections of the Scout Law, and if these are adhered to every boy will be a much better boy and man.

It is rather a reflection on us as parents and adults that our Scout Leaders have to beg, almost with tears in their eyes to get a little assistance in carrying on his work. They need a Scout home in each ward. It need not be anything elaborate. Just a place where they will not be molested. Where they can carry out their activities and give vent to their pent up energy in games, songs and yells. Can't we find such a place in a ward the size of the two local wards. One boy would be worth many times the cost, and if the program were really cared for by a good live Troop Committee, every boy could be steered on a path of useful activity.

From the Tenderfoot to the Second Class, the work is mostly Group activity. Then as the boy grows older and starts his First Class and King's Scout work, it tends to individual effort in keeping with the expansion and growth of the boy. So, from 12 to 18 there is activity and programs in Scouting for the boy. From experience we can say the opportunity is unlimited. As an aid to good clean sport, active scouting is one of the finest things a boy can be encouraged to pursue to train himself in discipline, self-reliance and usefulness. If you doubt this, look up the record of men and young men who have been good scouts, and see if they are not now and always have been good boys and "Good Scouts."

KING GEORGE'S DEATH RECALLS—

The death of King George causes a vast panorama to pass in review before the mind's eye. Each individual looks upon different scenes of Merrie Old England, of Muddling-Through Britain, of the Great Cultured Aristocratic Isles, of The Land of the Common Man of The Sun lit Far-Flung Empire.

We recall the scenes in Shakespeare's, George Eliot's, Burns' Dickens and many other writings.

We think of Oxford and Cambridge and of great London fogs.

We see Henry the Eighth and Good Queen Bess, and others.

We also see fierce religious wars.

We recall that English Bobbies don't carry guns, that British justice is swift and sure, and that gangsters don't think the climate good.

We see Joan of Arc burning at the stake on account of English clergy and Bunyan in Bed-

Mr. Law, as President and General Manager of United Grain Growers Limited, is to take up his residence in Alberta within a few months.

The Board of Directors of the Company has decided to establish the office of the President and General Manager at its Calgary Office. That office has been in Winnipeg since 1917, when the Alberta Farmers' Co-operative Elevator Company amalgamated with the Grain Growers' Grain Company to form United Grain Growers Limited.

Although the Company operates extensively in all three prairie provinces, the extent of its business is much larger in Alberta than in either Saskatchewan or Manitoba. That fact together with the importance of the Company's business at Vancouver, makes Calgary a suitable location for the office of the President and General Manager.

We see horrible coal mine disasters and strikes—and great estates—and an American woman in parliament treated as rough as one of the rest of them—and liking it.

We see fighting Irishmen and killed Scotchmen—and can all but hear the gloriously spiritual Welsh hymn singers.

When we think of England we see Eden, typical of Anglo-Saxon manhood at its best in its prime. A man who believes in peace—with honor.

We visualize soap box orators denouncing the government, Bobbies in the crowd laughing and the government paying about as much attention as of a boy with a bean-shooter blazing away at Gibraltar—Liberty.

When Americans think of England and it's late lamented king they think of the glamour and romance and majesty of royalty at its best.

A boy on a bicycle brought the bulletin of the king's death to the gates of the estate. "The King is dead. Long live the King."

The Prince of Wales, liked as a man the world around, beloved by his people was ready to take up the kingly burdens.

Now the world has taken up the cry, "The King is dead. Long Live the KING!"

PNEUMONIA

As the recognized cause of much illness and many deaths, pneumonia possesses an unenviable reputation. Under the descriptive name of 'inflammation of the lungs' pneumonia was just as well known to, and equally feared by previous generations.

The inflammation or pneumonia is due to one or more bacteria or germs. The disease may be primarily an inflammation of the lungs, or it may develop as a secondary condition. Secondary pneumonia is quite common in the early years of life, following upon measles and whooping cough. It becomes a rarer complication with advancing years excepting as a sequel of influenza.

Pneumonia reaches its height during the colder seasons, not because of the lower temperature of the air, but because, as the out-of-door temperature drops, windows and doors are closed, people crowd together indoor creating these conditions which favour the spread of pneumonia. It is caused by a living agent, or germ present in the sputum, therefore, precautions should be taken to prevent the transference of the germ in the sputum, or secretions of nose and throat from the sick to the well.

All ages, both sexes and all social classes fall victim, but pneumonia is more common and most severe among those who, because of comparative poverty live in overcrowded homes, without proper food, possibly deprived of sufficient warmth and sanitary facilities.

Nevertheless, by far the most active predisposing factor is the development of pneumonia is an attack of one of the communicable diseases and, particularly, whooping-cough, measles and influenza. It is because of the pneumonia complications that these diseases are always such a serious menace to life.

Those suffering from pneumonia should be isolated and their sputum disinfected. The disease is not readily spread. It is caused by a living agent, or germ present in the sputum, therefore, precautions should be taken to prevent the transference of the germ in the sputum, or secretions of nose and throat from the sick to the well.

most satisfactory feeds for horses, and after weaning, the colts here are fed about 4 pounds a day of a mixture of from 2 to 3 parts of oats with one part of bran. A young, rapidly growing horse requires large quantities of lime and phosphorus for bone development, and to provide the necessary salt, and at the same time guard against a possible deficiency of these materials, a mixture of 60 parts of salt & 40 parts of mealcalcium phosphate is now being self-fed to the Station colts. The importance of providing an ample supply of water for colts receiving hay and grain is not forgotten.

EXPERIMENTAL STATION, LETHBRIDGE

DRAFT HORSE BREEDING

To those of our readers who are engaged in draft horse breeding, a few extracts from "The Agriculture Situation and Outlook, 1936," on the status of the draft horse industry may be of interest. The above publication is issued jointly by the Dominion Departments of Agriculture and of Trade and Commerce; its object being to present in summary form "basic information which will assist farmers in planning their business operations in 1936".

That a marked increase in horse breeding has occurred during the past two years is evident from the fact that in 1934 there was an increase of 64 per cent over the preceding year in the number of horse breeders' clubs, while in '35 there was a further increase of 33 per cent over 1934. At the same time the market for good heavy draft horses continued to improve, and the prospects for realizing a profit from horse breeding operations during the next few years appear particularly good. A note of warning, however, is included in the words: "Little expansion is expected through city and industrial outlets, and the needs of agriculture will continue to furnish the principal market. As long as the prices of feed grains are low in relation to gasoline prices, farmers will continue to do a greater portion of their work with horses. An oversupply of work horses, excepting those of particularly good heavy draft type, may develop sooner than expected because of the potential increase in the use of mechanical power. This potential increase depends upon improved economic conditions on the farm and in the cities. Farmers should plan their horse production with a view to the situation four or five years hence."

Feeding Draft Colts Through Their First Winter

During the years of extremely low prices for horses, the practice became general of allowing colts to pretty much shift for themselves during their first winter. While this policy was difficult to condemn under the circumstances existing during those years, it is well to remember that:

1. The price of high-grade and pure-bred draft colts depends largely on their size, and strength and quality of bone.

2. Under normal conditions, a good draft colt will usually attain somewhat more than one-half of its total mature weight during its first year of life, consequently any marked deficiency in the ration during this period will almost inevitably have detrimental effects.

3. If stunted or deformed during its first year, whether from lack of feed or any other cause, a colt will never fully recover.

With these points in mind, it is clear that perseverance in the policy of allowing colts to shift for themselves during the years of improved horse prices will not allow the breeder to reap the full benefit of the stronger market for his product.

In irrigation districts such as this, the chief hay is alfalfa and at this Station it has proved itself a very satisfactory hay for developing good draft colts. Among the concentrates, oats and bran are probably the

A Whale of a Story of a Whale

An advertising expert talking about the psychology of propaganda said:

"A boy boarded an excursion steamer where every seat was occupied. 'Seen the whale tied to the pier on the other side?' he asked his fellow-passengers. His whale story was laughed at, but he kept repeating it.

Gradually, one by one, the passengers got up and crossed over. The boy got a seat. Soon he could have had one hundred seats, for everybody had hurried over so as not to miss the whale.

He sat alone for some time. Finally he hoped up and rushed to the other side of the boat, muttering, 'Maybe there is a whale after all.'
